vides a fascinating view of the way the hippie phenomenon has touched the imagination of "straight" society: the wave of psychedelic colors and designs blossoming in stores, the turned-on sound echoing from transistors everywhere, and the hippie slang (in the glossary) now entering the American vernacular.

THE NEW HOW TO KEEP HOUSE, by Mary Davis Gillies. Home is still home, and Mrs. Gillies tells here how to have an attractive and efficient one by taking advantage of changing products and living habits and learning new angles in home care.

TO THE TOP OF THE WORLD, by Charles Kuralt. "On the night of April 29, 1967, five men lay on their backs one hundred miles offshore on the Arctic Ocean ice, listening to the wind. Fully dressed in their boots and parkas, their sleeping bags unzipped for easy exit, they stared upward at the violently flapping walls of their tents and listened. The next deafening spasm of ice, they knew, might destroy their own floe and drop them into the sea. The next wild gust of wind might wrench the tents from their stakes and fling them away.

THE WORLD'S STRONGEST MAN

The day little Jimmie admired my muscles I was the strongest man in the whole world. And so I remained until the next morning when I got into an argument with that big kid in the next block. Then a humiliating retreat seemed preferable to a bloody nose.

Life hasn't changed much since I've grown up. Sometimes on Sunday I am so confident of my human might that I glibly pass up the spiritual resources my neighbors are finding in church. And by Monday I'm wondering where to turn for help in some insurmountable difficulty.

Experience is forever teaching me that my own self-confidence is mostly self-delusion. The men I admire seem absolutely honest about their own limitations, and absolutely certain about God's strength.

One Sunday as I sat in a pew and watched others receiving Communion this thought struck me: Among those who kneel reverently before an altar today is undoubtedly the world's strongest man.

And if you don't think that anybody who wants to work can find a job in this day and time, just go out and look for able-bodied people to work at good wages. They're almost non-existent.

Factories are crying for workers to communicate with a healthy pay check every week. Where are they?

I know. You do, too.

Not that I have any doubt about the fact that "It pays to advertise" but Ron Laird's Telephone Talk ad this week proves the point very sharply. If you've been wondering what all this DA (directory assistance) bit South Central Bell has been talking about, just read Ron's message elsewhere in this issue.

The Republican Party isn't very shy about raiding Hollywood for its candidates for public office, but it seems to me that it is employing some of the Film City's most talented gag-writers for its national campaign.

Here are some samples from the Republican Newsletters:

"You've got to know the Democrats are in trouble when the most attractive thing about the Humphrey-Muskie ticket is the hyphen!"

"One thing you can say about the heads of the Democratic party: This definitely isn't the class with the fewer cavities."

"LBJ said a Democratic victory in November can mean the difference between world order and world chaos—he didn't say which."

There's more, but we ought to give equal time to the Democrats, if they ever get around to sending out a newsletter before the November election.

SOME RANDOM THOUGHTS—

There's something that bugs me right out of my mind and I can't seem to find the solution to it.

Why is it that whenever there is a street construction job, or a highway weed-mowing job, or any kind of a building or excavation project going on and a lot of people are employed, you always see about four or five men (the workers) clustered around the project just looking on, doing nothing at all? Suppose they're conferring or is it that the joke I heard once really is true.

In essence it answers the question about why it takes four highway workers to clean up a small patch of ground around a telephone pole. Well, they said, it takes one to mow, and one to hoe, one in the rest room and one waiting to go.

—I wonder why it is that all these people who come to me with "accurate evidence" of wrong-doing by public officials always seem to say "somebody else knows the full story" when I ask for chapter and verse.

—If somebody gives me an affidavit that usurious interest rates are being charged hard-pressed working people in this city, I'll be most happy to publish the facts.

"I Can't Believe It"

Charles Fields Named Interim City Manager

Charles Fields

The City Commission of South Fulton asked City Attorney Charles Fields to serve as acting City Manager, since James Hickman resigned and until a trained and qualified city manager could be employed by the city.

After weighing the matter and the best interests of the City of South Fulton, Mr. Fields agreed to the request, stating, "I know it is the hope of every citizen that the city affairs will move along quietly and without interruption in the change-over. It is acknowledged that the City-Manager form of government is the most economical and efficient and will operate more smoothly when a qualified city manager is managing the affairs of the city in accordance with the authority and responsibility given him under the code.

The commissioners hope to secure the services of a qualified city manager within a few days.

It is believed that the city affairs will continue in an orderly manner, since all the employees have proven loyal to their responsibilities and know their jobs.

Murray State To Present First Honorary Degrees In Its History

The first honorary degrees in Murray State University's 45-year history will be presented to Dr. Ralph H. Woods, president emeritus, and Kentucky author and poet Jesse Stuart Oct. 21.

Dr. Harry M. Sparks will confer the degrees—an LL.D. for Dr. Woods and a D.Pd. for Stuart—during ceremonies formally inaugurating him as the fifth president of Murray State.

"Considering the outstanding contributions made to Murray State University by Dr. Woods, I think it extremely appropriate that he be the first to be presented an honorary degree from Murray State University," President Sparks said.

"Jesse has singly honored our university by contributing his original manuscripts to our library and has brought distinction to all teachers in America through his writings and through the example he has given as an outstanding educator. Therefore, we are pleased to recognize and honor him by granting him a doctorate of pedagogy."

An internationally known educator, Dr. Woods retired this year after 23 years as president of Murray State. During his 44-year career in education, he has also served as a teacher, high school principal, teacher trainer and supervisor.

Known primarily for his leadership in the development of a building construction program at Murray State that included 41 major projects during his tenure as president, Dr. Woods was instrumental in other expansions—the addition of several new departments, student enrollment that mushroomed from 565 to more than 7,000, a faculty that increased in size from 62 to 376, and university status for the school.

Dr. Woods went to Greece in 1948 at the request of the U.S. State Department on a special mission to assist with the rehabilitation of schools there and to aid in the realignment of educational objectives with special emphasis on rural education.

A native Virginian, he earned the Ph.D. degree at Berea College, the BS in agriculture and the MA at the University of Kentucky and the Ph.D. at Cornell University.

Stuart, poet laureate of Kentucky and known throughout the country for his novels, short stories, poems and biographies, has a three-room suite named for him in the Dr. C. S. Lowry addition to the Murray State University Library.

The suite contains the Green-up County writer's works from scribbled notes to finished books. The original draft of "Taps for Private Tussie," which sold more than two million copies, is housed there.

Murray State adopted Stuart and Stuart adopted Murray State after he was stricken with a near-fatal heart attack following a speech to the First District Education Association at the university in 1964. He still visits Murray periodically and has formed many close relationships with people at the university, and in the community.

Widely known for his work as

DR. RALPH WOODS

a teacher and school supervisor, Stuart has written two books—"The Thread That Runs So True" and "Mr. Gallien's School"—that are considered as exceptional contributions to teaching and to school administration.

President Sparks, former superintendent of public instruction and for 14 years chairman of the education department at Murray State, was named to succeed Dr. Woods in January. He will be assisted in the conferring of the degrees by Dr. Hugh L. Oakley, dean of the School of Applied Science and Technology, Dr. Thomas B. Hogancamp, vice president for administrative affairs, and Dr. William G. Nash, vice president for academic affairs and dean of the faculties.

Inauguration activities are expected to draw more than 2,000 visitors to the campus, including Kentucky Gov. Louie B. Nunn and featured speakers, Dr. Frank Dickey, executive director of the National Commission on Accrediting in Washington and former president of the University of Kentucky, and Dr. Adron Doran, president of Morehead State University and a graduate of Murray State.

6-8 Candidates Still In Running For UK Head

LEXINGTON, Ky. The chairman of the committee to find a new president for the University of Kentucky said Friday six to eight candidates still are being considered for the job.

Dr. Ralph Angelucci said he hoped to have a report for the school's trustees within two months.

"It's been a long, difficult job ...but now we're getting toward the end of it," said Angelucci.

The new president is being sought to replace Dr. John W. Oswald, who resigned to become vice chancellor of the University of California system.

FRANKFORT, Ky. Lansdale and Ritchey Construction Co. of Lexington has submitted the apparent low bid of $379,800 for renovation of Memorial Hall at the University of Kentucky in Lexington.

Fulton County Wins Over Rebs

Obion County Central spotted Fulton County an early touchdown and then made the Pilots battle until the fourth quarter before Fulton County got two more tallies to down the visiting Tennesseans by a 21-0 count.

Obion Central got the early breaks but just couldn't capitalize on them. In the early moments of the game they twice had the ball inside the Fulton County 30, but both times a strong Kentucky defense held them on downs.

The Pilots won the game in the second quarter when fullback David Westbrook picked up the score from five yards out, clobbering a 70-yard drive. The PAT was good and it was 7-0. This closed out the first half.

The third quarter turned into a defensive battle as first one team and then the other had to give up the football but the fourth frame found the Pilots adding 14 more points to their margin.

Westbrook got the second score of the night for his team and himself as he capped a 60-yard scoring march with a two-yard plunge.

The next score came some 30 seconds later when Tommy Hepler, a Pilot defensive end, picked off a Jerry McCullough aerial and returned it 35 yards to rack up six more. The PAT was on target again and that was the ballgame, 21-0.

Coach Jerry Gage of Obion County said, "Our boys played a pretty decent first half." He also said that injured backs Johnny Taylor and Dan Garrigan were beginning to come around. These two boys comprise half of the starting Central backfield.

Deer Season For Archers Opens Oct. 5

Tennessee's bowhunters will get the first crack at harvesting part of the State's deer herd when the special archery season opens at sunrise Saturday, Oct. 5. The season will run continuously through Oct. 27, and one deer of either sex may be taken per hunter.

Roy Anderson, Chief of the Game and Fish Commission's Game Management Division, said hunters may have excellent opportunities for bagging a deer this year.

"Providing we have periodic rains to keep the woods damp, we can expect a good deer season," Anderson stated. "The scarcity of mast this fall will cause the deer to move about more during feeding times, and perhaps this will allow hunters a better chance to see deer."

Early reports from the Central Peninsula Wildlife Management Area, where archery hunts were held September 16 through 28, would appear to bear out Anderson's contention. Although complete results have not yet been tabulated, the total take appears to be higher than in past years.

All but 11 of the State's 95 counties will be open to at least limited deer hunting this fall. Those counties which are closed in their entirety include Cannon, Bedford, DeKalb, Grainger, Hamblen, Jefferson, Knox, Loudon, Moore, Rutherford and Smith.

While the Cumberland Plateau region and the area around Kentucky Lake will offer good deer hunting, perhaps the best hunting will be found on wildlife management areas operated by the Commission. Managed archery hunts will be conducted during October at AEDC, Anderson-Tully, Andrew Johnson, Catoosa, Cheatham, Cove Creek, Land-Between-the-Lakes, Laurel Fork, Natchez Trace, Prentice Cooper and Shelby areas. Any number of hunters may participate in these hunts simply by purchasing an area permit at the checking station prior to hunting.

Devils Score But Lose, Too

If there is any joy to be found on the football scene in Obion County, it must rest with the South Fulton team.

The Devils, winless in four outings, do manage to score. Such has been the case the last two weeks, at least. Last week, Obion County teams were beaten by an aggregate count of 112-6. This week it was 94-13.

Both weeks, it has been the Red Devils who managed to tally.

This week, they dropped a game to Halls with the Devils coming out on the short end of a 32-13 margin.

South Fulton took the kickoff and promptly proceeded to fumble. Halls recovering the Devils were moving the ball when they fumbled with Halls falling on it. The first play, 60 yards up the middle by a Halls back, gave Halls a 6-0 edge. The PAT was off.

South Fulton, proving the old adage that hope springs eternal, came right back on a sustained drive with Bobby Boyd, back in action after an injury, getting the score from four yards away. He added the point and South Fulton had a lead.

But not for long. The second quarter of play found Halls scoring twice. The Halls team was greatly aided by three roughing-the-kicker calls on South Fulton. Each time, the Devils would hold and force a punt and then undo their defense by drawing the penalty. The Tigers failed to get the PAT either time and went off at halftime leading 18-7.

The second half found South Fulton drawing first blood. Using short passes to move the ball downfield, the Devils pushed it over and again it was Boyd. The try after was stopped but it was 18-13 at the moment.

Halls resorted to the same type offense and, using the airways, tallied again in the third frame and added the point. As the final period of action began it was 25-13.

Halls wanted more to add insult to injury and got it again via the aerial route. The point-after was good again and it ended up 32-13.

Boyd was again the man for South Fulton as he gained yardage when no one else could. Toone looked good throwing the ball and these two seniors are most of the offense at South Fulton.

The Devils play on Thursday night next week.

brings many to think of a need for development of a national agricultural system.

R. B. MacDonald and D. A. Landgrede, of Purdue University's laboratory for agricultural remote sensing, have proposed techniques associated with the Apollo Applications Program for such future agricultural systems. They believe that such remote sensing can identify land use, even discriminating among crop species and identifying major topographic and soil features. Unique soil problems such as salinity should be easily recognized. Forest fires are a gross feature and would be even more easily detected along with plant growth density. Another detection for the remote sensing operation would be that of early detection of plant diseases.

Purdue researchers expect additional sensing techniques will evolve to supplement, accelerate and refine present systems of gathering and processing agricultural information. This would be a most economical way to deal with increased future requirements.

A vast potential in economic benefits would be realized if these improvements should materialize. Approximately 40 per cent of the U. S. cotton production (5.6 million bales) is grown under irrigation... one of the potential applications of remote sensing is monitoring of soil moisture conditions and the optimum dates to irrigate crops. If this proves feasible, a 10 per cent crop increase may be realized or about $100 million.

Location and assessment of weed infestation could reduce the $3.8 billion loss by 15 per cent with a comparable benefit from detection of insect and disease invasions.

Almost one-third of our 107 million cattle in the United States are on the open range. If we could detect and assess nutrient deficient areas, overgrazing, brush and weed infestation, the range carrying capacity might conceivably be increased by 10 per cent. This would be equivalent to an annual increase of 3.5 million more calves which would have a value of about $350 million.

According to Dr. I. M. Levitt, Director, Fels Planetarium of Franklin Institute, "Today when we know that two-thirds of the world's population suffers from hunger and malnutrition, it is imperative that all possible aids be brought to bear on the problem of providing food for the hungry."

Most researchers agree, none of the methods thus far explored appears to hold more promise than the use of satellites for remote sensing of agricultural systems.

Hickman Woman, Three Area
Men Presidential Electors

A Hickman resident is one of only four women among 36 presidential electors selected by four political parties which will have candidates for president and vice president on the general ballot in Kentucky next November 5.

She is Miss Frances Johnson, the city clerk at Hickman.

Three Purchase men are among the electors.

They are: Paul Durbin, Fulton, Democratic party;

J. T. Taylor, Murray, and Charles Carrell, Benton, American Independent party (the George Wallace party).

The First District is not represented among the electors selected by the Socialist Workers party, the fourth party to be on the ballot.

Under Kentucky law, the names of the party candidates for president and vice president will appear on the ballot, but a vote for them will be listed as a vote for the electors, who have the official authority of casting the state's vote for the presidential candidate who polls the highest popular vote at the November 5 election. Kentucky has nine electoral votes.

The names of the electors for each party filed in the secretary of state's office at Frankfort are:

Republican: Frances Johnson, Hickman; Ernest Neal, Scottsville; J. Earl Dearing, Louisville; Kelly Bruce, Mason; O. M. Travis, Monticello; Leonard Ballard, Richmond; Roy Potter, Louisa; John Petot Sr., Louisville; Thomas Manby Sr., La-grange.

Democratic: James Patton, Frankfort; Thomas Preston, Cynthiana; Paul Durbin, Fulton; Richard Garnett, Glasgow; William Conley, Louisville; George Williamson, Lagrange; T. J. Hill, Stanford; John Keller, Harrodsburg; Charles Cantrell, Elkhorn City.

American Independent Party: Virgie Craycraft, Lexington; J. T. Taylor, Murray; James Robinson, Lexington; Richard Treitz, Louisville; Frank Sadler, Lexington; V. J. Steele Jr., Owensboro; Charles Carrell, Benton; The Rev. Robert H. Jones, Louisville; Pete Brown, Lexington.

Socialist Workers Party: George C. Calhoun Jr., Frankfort; James Embry, Covington; Frances Frampton, Lexington; John Grove, Louisville; Mary Katherine Grove, Louisville; George McAlister, Beres; Donald Madison, Lexington; Rodger Wock, Louisville; Bradford Washburn, Louisville.

County School Superintendent C. D. Farr today released the names of five persons he and the county board of education have chosen to serve on the board.

They are Lester Halley of Troy, Ralph White of Hornsbeck, Herbert Barber of Dixie, J. W. Shelton of the Pleasant Valley Road and Wilford Denton of the Hickman Highway.

The remaining five members of the 20-member committee are being appointed by County Judge Dan W. McKinley.

Previously, Mayor James L. Rippey and Union City School Superintendent J. H. Rochelle each appointed five persons to the committee.

When its membership is filled, the committee will meet and begin its comprehensive studies of the two systems and, when its work is completed, will submit a report, in writing, to both the city and the county.

The study, it is believed, may take as long as a year to complete.

Judging Team

In 3rd Place

The Obion County 4-H Dairy Judging team has placed second in the Mid-South Fair at Memphis.

The team was in competition with teams from Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, Arkansas and Missouri.

Team members are Bonita Burrow and Marilyn Hardy of South Fulton and Jimmy McWhorter of Obion County Central.

Miss Burrow's individual score was in the top three out of 300 entries.

Goodbye and Thanks

For more than three-quarters of a century the Bennett family has been privileged to serve your every need in the line of pharmaceuticals. With every prescription we filled the hopes for a speedy recovery and constant good health went with it.

Within a few days we will discontinue the business that was founded and has been operated by our family since 1890. In all the pleasant years we have been associated with you we have seen Fulton grow from a very small community to a modern and fast growing city.

While we will not be involved in the normal routine of Fulton business - life actively, we will always maintain a deep interest in its welfare and its growth.

It is with deep appreciation that we say farewell, thank you for your business and your friendship and remind you that all of you will be remembered in our warmest memories.
